This week finds construction and plans for the Centennial Celebration coming into the final stage. An air of expectation hangs over Mattapoisett as floats are being built and the pageant members rehearse their parts. In the picture at the top of this column, a crew from the Mattapoisett Couples Club builds the scenery that will be used in the pageant. Now that final plans are really beginning to jell we can give you some of the highlights expected for Centennial Week.

PAINTS -- WALLPAPER
ARTIST'S SUPPLIES
104 MIDDLE ST. NEW BEDFORD

Our cover picture was taken in 1907 of the Mattapoisett Stage Coach as it appeared in the 50th Anniversary parade. Through the efforts of John Field of Mattapoisett Neck the Stage has been located in a museum in West Warwick, Rhode Island, and is being loaned to us to appear in our 100th Anniversary parade and in the pageant. This stage ran regular runs from New Bedford until the building of the trolley and many people of the town will remember their rides on it. There will also be a collection of carriages which will be used in 2 episodes of the pageant.

Also of interest is that the oxen which will appear in the pageant have been loaned from the western part of Massachusett. They are a famous team which has presented exhibitions all over the eastern part of the country.

Over 400 people will take part in the pageant. There will be 8 saddle horses and riders and a pair of draft horses from Raynham and Lakeville will also be in the spectacle.

An interesting sidelight - the locomotive which will represent the first train is on loan from the Duxbury 40 and 8 and the cars for the train are being built by the boys from the Couples Club. The train itself will be changed to a earlier style of locomotive.

There will be 1000 seats available at the pageant at 25¢ each. The seats in the front section will be reserved for elderly people.

keep floors beautiful

The real test of wax quality is - how long does the protection last? BOWAX is a new formula of lanolin and fine waxes that blend to give you a shine that lasts far longer.

That tough, beautiful shine is wax protection that saves you work and saves your floor.

Although the original cost of BOWAX is slightly more, the long lasting QUALITY will save you money, as quality always does. BOWAX is self polishing. It is real wax that protects

GAME FISH LANDED AT MATTAPOISETT WHARF

On Sunday, July 21st, the first blue marlin of the season to be brought in to Mattapoisett was caught by Dr. Stanley J. Mysliwy on the Anna Kayem. The same day another blue marlin was landed by Frank Pimental in the Jeanne Claire who was a close second in landing his fish at the wharf. It is interesting to note that the Anna Kayem appeared on the July 18th Presto Press cover in a painting which shows her harpooning her first game fish. We hope we brought her luck.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Mary Dexter of Bolles Corner has been called hence.

To those of us who has known her for 40 years or better there will be a sad vacant place.

Our friend has courage, fortitude, patience, steadfastness, integrity, and understanding. She has high fellowship as well.

Thus she gave us a perfect example; for this gallantry and understanding, this friendly helpful touch, we thank her sweet spirit! Signed, H.

THE MATTAPOISETT CENTENNIAL PAGEANT

Episode I - The Indians - 1676

(Mattapoisett was the scene of much action during King Philip's War.)

Indians set up camp on Mattapoisett shore. Fire dance by maidens. Squaw Sachem Awashonks and Capt. Church make peace treaty. White settlers buy land from Indian owners. Indian war dance.

Episode II - First Settlers Arrive - 1680

(The first settlers were Samuel Hammond, Moses Barlow, and William Dexter.)

Settlers draw lots for land. Children play games. The courting. Families leave for homesteads.

Episode III - The First Church and Early Customs - 1750

(In 1736 Mattapoisett was set off as a separate precinct; four years later the first Meeting House was built at the corner of Acushnet and River Roads.)

Churchgoers arrive. The choir. The Maypole Dance. Ringleaders put in stocks and pillory by constables.

Episode IV - The Revolution - 1775

(In colonial days, the Lt. John Hommand house at the Herring Weir was the headquarters of the village. As the Revolution came on, Minute Men were drilled and a vessel sent to the West Indies for muskets, powder, and shot.)

Women's quilting bee, school children playing, men drilling. Dance. Rider brings news of Lexington. English flag hauled down. Goodbyes to families. Minute Men march off.

Episode V - The War of 1812

(By 1812 there were some 40 houses clustering around the present waterfront, with a little new schoolhouse on the corner of Pearl and Church Streets. The scene shows this corner with a few housefronts on lower Pearl Street. During the summer of 1814, British warships were in the Bay and at night sent their barges in to attack the the shipping, wharves, and shipyards.)

Scene 1 - A forenoon in June, 1814. The last day of school. Children's minuet. Sound of ships' guns from Bay. Soldiers and cannon arrive from New Bedford for protection of the village.

Scene 2 - Midnight, the next September.

Cannon fire from attacking vessels and from waterfront. Mrs. Willis runs up street in nightgown and rings alarm on schoolhouse bell. Horsemen ride in from other parts of town. Attack repulsed.

Episode VI - Whaling Days - County House Fire - 1850's

(By 1850 Mattapoisett was a busy whaling and shipbuilding port. When the whaleships returned from a voyage, the men brought curios from all parts of the world, and sometimes a dark-skinned native from the South Seas. The County House, a tavern on the waterfront almost opposite the foot of Barstow Street, burned one February night in 1855. The flames spread to other buildings and almost burned up the whole village.)

Arrival of stage coach from New Bedford. Whaling captain and sailors return from a voyage. Cotillian dance at Eaton Hall. The County House burns. Jonathan Homes' house dynamited to save the town.

Episode VII - Separation of the Towns - Rochester Town Meeting - 1857

(For 20 years the Town Meetings were a continuous wrangle over separation. Marion was finally set apart in 1852 and Mattapoisett in 1857.)

Mattapoisett people arrive in carriages at Rochester Center. Meeting opened by prayer. Choosing a moderator. Heated discussion followed by vote to divide the Town. Committee appointed to settle boundary line.

Episode VIII - The Railroad

Scene 1 - 1854 - The First Train

(Railroad lines had run for some years from Boston to New Bedford and from Boston to the Cape. In the early 1850's, when Mattapoisett's prosperity was at its height, several leading businessmen joined with others from Fairhaven and Marion to form a company to build The Fairhaven Branch Railroad.)
